

March 9, 2020

Word Count: 189

QuickPoint! – Kate Brown is out of touch if she thinks an executive order is needed to reduce emissions

By Rachel Dawson

Oregon’s Governor Kate Brown responded to the Republican walk-out and end of the 2020 legislative short session by saying that she “will be taking executive action to lower our greenhouse gas emissions.” Brown is also “open to calling a special session if we can ensure it will benefit Oregonians.”

Despite what Brown may believe, executive action is not necessary to lower our state’s greenhouse gas emissions. Oregon residents and businesses are way ahead of the governor and are already cutting emissions in their daily lives. And they’re doing it without heightened government regulation or a burdensome tax.

According to the Oregon Global Warming Commission, per capita emissions have decreased by 22.8% since 1990, and emissions per unit of GDP have dropped by 50.7%.

Source: Oregon Global Warming Commission, 2018 Biennial Report

Additionally, Oregon’s energy use per capita is the lowest it’s been since 1960; and Oregonians have decreased energy consumption per capita by 37% since it peaked in 1972.

Oregon's Per Capita Energy Consumption Over Time

Source: Oregon Department of Energy, 2018 Biennial Report

If these trends continue, aggregate GHG emissions will decrease in the future without placing an undue financial burden on rural and low-income residents.

Oregonians, and not Kate Brown, are doing what needs to be done to benefit Oregonians.

---

Rachel Dawson is a Policy Analyst at Cascade Policy Institute, Oregon's free-market public policy research organization.

Attention editors
and producers:

Cascade Commentaries are provided for reprint in newspapers and other publications, with credit given to author(s) and Cascade. Contact Cascade to arrange print or broadcast interviews on this commentary topic.

Please contact:

Cascade Policy Institute
4850 SW Scholls Ferry Rd.
Suite 103
Portland, Oregon 97225

Phone: (503) 242-0900
Fax: (503) 242-3822

www.cascadepolicy.org
info@cascadepolicy.org

Cascade Policy Institute is a tax-exempt educational organization as defined under IRS code 501 (c)(3). Nothing appearing in this Cascade Commentary is to be construed as necessarily representing the views of Cascade or its donors. The views expressed herein are the author's own.